ADMINISTRATION YIELDS ON NEUTRALITY

The European upheaval produced two important developments during the week-end.

The first was the rather sensational spurt of the German submarine campaign, which may signal a fresh U-boat offensive to try at one-and-the-same time to break the British naval blockade and to cut off England's own food supplies by destruction of merchant shipping.

The other was the slowing down, at least temporarily, of the Russian drive for domination of eastern Europe and the Balkans. This has been due to the resolute resistance of Finland on the north and Turkey on the south to what were reported as sweeping Soviet demands.

Both Finland and Turkey represent powerful strategic points in the Soviet scheme for overlordship of the vast territory reaching from the Baltic to the eastern Mediterranean.

Domination of Finland would give Russia control of the Baltic area and provide a powerful position for either defensive or offensive measures in relation to western Europe.

Control of Turkey, and consequently of the all-important Dardanelles, which are the gateway to the Black Sea, would make Russia pretty well master of the eastern end of the Mediterranean—a vigorous challenge to Britain, France, Italy and Germany.

Diplomatic quarters in Moscow believed Turkey might sign a cautious agreement, according to Russia's demands that belligerent warships be prevented from passing through the Dardanelles. This, aimed at the Anglo-French allies, would cut them off from Rumania.

Selecting Jury to Try Younger
Gore Slow Work

Benton, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Selection of a jury to try George W. Gore, Jr., on a charge of murder in the slaying of his step-mother proceeded slowly today because of prospective jurors' objection to capital punishment.

Five members of the venire were excused during the first hour's questioning. Included in the five were three of the panel's 10 women.

Counsel for the state asked each juror if he were willing "to return a death sentence should the evidence merit."

Mrs. Nancy Gore, 45, was slain on the sleeping porch of her home here at dawn on Sunday, July 23.

She was the second wife of Dr. George W. Gore, Sr., prominent southern Illinois physician. Dr. Gore's first wife, mother of the man on trial, died several years ago.

On Nov. 13 the husband of the slain woman is scheduled to go on trial on a charge of slaying Carl Choisser, Benton publisher-attorney, who was counsel for the physician's son. Choisser was a cousin of young Gore.

Choisser was fatally wounded near the public square in Benton Sept. 25 and died that night of his wounds. A grand jury indicted the 55-year-old physician on a charge of murder.

The jury panel for young Gore's trial was the first mixed one for a murder case in the history of Franklin county.

Circuit Judge W. Joe Hill was on the bench.

State's Attorney Rea Jones is being assisted by Marion S. Hart. Defending Gore were R. E. Smith, well known Benton criminal lawyer, and H. E. Morgan of Christopher.

Gore, pale from confinement in jail, smiled as he entered the court room. He was neatly dressed in a dark suit and a white shirt.

Britain today reported a German air attack on the Scottish coast had been repulsed as the nazis claimed new success against the allies at sea.

A brief British announcement said "heavy casualties" had been inflicted on aircraft which "attempted to attack coastal objectives."

The German army high command declared the same submarine which sank the battleship Royal Oak had disabled the 32,000-ton battle cruiser Repulse, an assertion which brought jubilation in Berlin.

Hungarian nazis reported police had arrested 140 members of the Hungarian "death legion," a dissident nazi offshoot, to head off a coup against the Budapest government.

The German high command said one British and one French air scout had been downed on German soil. A British announcement said reconnaissance flights were carried out successfully over Germany last night.

The British Admiralty, refusing comment on the German claims, listed 414 survivors of the approximately 1,200 men aboard the Royal Oak. One British and two French merchantmen were sunk during the week-end.

Tension Increases

The Soviet diplomatic campaign brought additional military preparations in Turkey and tension in Finland where the nation waited the outcome of a Finnish delegation's visit to Moscow.

A Finnish foreign office spokesman said the delegates, who returned today, would go back to Moscow for further talks at an unspecified date. The silence of crowds watching the delegates return indicated the nation's feeling that it was facing a crisis.

Unofficial Moscow sources expressed belief Finland probably would concede Russia certain Baltic islands for naval bases, but would balk at a military alliance or concessions on the strategic Aaland islands between Sweden and Finland.

A Turkish mission was expected to leave today.

Poor Idea

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—(AP)—It certainly isn't a good idea to use slugs in a police station pay telephone.

Desk Sergeant Levi Copeland became suspicious when a man booked on two traffic charges began calling up friends for bail. Searching the man, the officer said he found 22 slugs, and that an inspector found three more in the telephone's coin box.

Now the prisoner faces a charge of using slugs in a coin device, in addition to the traffic charges.

Pleads "Mercy" in Drowning of 5-Year-Old Boy

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Lodging of a homicide charge against a 26-year-old unemployed soda clerk accused of drowning his five-year-old stepson in a bathtub raised the "mercy death" issue here today for the third time within a year.

Patrolman Walter Cicack said the stepfather, Lawrence Rougeau, dazed and disheveled, stepped up to him in Union Square yesterday and told him: "I just killed my stepson, Jimmy, because he was groaning, and I was afraid he was going crazy like his mother."

"I tied his hands and feet with neckties and held his head under the water in the tub until he stopped squirming. I left him there and came out for a walk."

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum said Rougeau's wife was an inmate of a mental institution. He said Rougeau told him he had been influenced in his deed by reading accounts last week of the chloroforming of crippled Raymond Repouille, 13, by his father, Louis Repouille.

Bus Driver of Rockford Dies in Fire Sunday

Wenona, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Cleo Jordan, 25, bus driver of Rockford, Ill., burned to death yesterday when the interior of a bus in which he was sleeping caught fire.

Jordan had taken the bus to a Wenona garage after taking Streater high school pupils to a football game, and told George Sharp, the attendant, that he was going to sleep in it. About four hours later, Sharp said he discovered the interior of the bus burning but he was unable to awaken Jordan and he could not gain entrance because the door was locked shut by the safety catch. Firemen extinguished the flames and found Jordan's body, severely burned, between two seats.

Sharp told a coroner's jury he could advance no cause for the blaze. Coroner J. P. Johnson of Marshall county continued an inquest after an autopsy was ordered at the request of officials of the Peoria-Rockford Bus Co., employers of Jordan.

Jordan, who worked as an extra driver for the company, is survived by his wife.

The former cabinet officer under the Democratic administration of former Governor George H. Earle was the first of a dozen high Democrats to be tried on indictments that grew out of charges hurled during the 1938 campaign.

BODY OF OREGON MAN FOUND HANGING IN BASEMENT

David Abbott Took Life While Alone at Home Sunday Evening

(Telegraph Special Service)

Oregon, Oct. 16.—The body of David Abbott, about 65, was found hanging in the basement of his home on South Fifth street at an early hour this morning after his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Abbott, who resided with him, became alarmed at his long absence from home and called Night Officer James Loan to assist them in a search for him. Coroner J. C. Akins of Forrester was conducting an inquest at the Jorgensen funeral parlors this afternoon.

Mr. Abbott, who for some unknown reason had been despondent for some time, was alone at home during the afternoon, when his son and daughter-in-law went for a ride after a late dinner. They returned from their ride at about 7:30 o'clock in the evening, but were not particularly concerned over Mr. Abbott's absence. They retired at the usual hour, but later began to worry about the elder man, and at 2 o'clock the son looked into his father's room, and not finding him went to the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lettie Abbott, to see if he had been there.

Learning nothing of Mr. Abbott's whereabouts there the son called Officer Loan, and the resultant search revealed the body. It was brought out that two grandchildren of the deceased, Carolyn and Charles Abbott had seen him about the home at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, but when they went back at about 6 to spend the evening with him they could not locate him and returned to the home of their mother, Mrs. Lettie Abbott.

The deceased is survived by his son, Shelby, and the two grandchildren, his wife and a son, Everett, having preceded him in death. Funeral arrangements had not been made early this afternoon.

Louis A. Phillips of Eldena Passed Away at Hospital Sunday Night

He was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Phillips, who preceded him in death, as did one sister, Mrs. Fred Krehl.

He leaves to mourn his passing his widow; five brothers, Hayes Phillips of Brandon, Iowa; William and Clyde of Franklin Grove; Willis of Ashton and Clark of Delhi, Iowa, together with a host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Phillips resided in Eldena for 40 years, where he had been engaged in the grocery business for the past 20 years. Because of failing health, he retired from business about a year ago.

Funeral services will be held at the Preston funeral home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, followed by interment in Oakwood.

Shanahan's Wedding in Supreme Court for Ruling

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—The Illinois Supreme court today heard oral arguments in the appeal of the Misses Margaret and Mary Flynn of Chicago from the Cook county Circuit court decree holding valid the deathbed marriage of the late David E. Shanahan.

The Flynn sisters contend there was a conspiracy by which a marriage to Helen Troesch of Springfield, his former secretary, was forced upon Shanahan 13 days before his death Oct. 18, 1936; and a new will drawn so that she received the bulk of his $850,000 estate. The Misses Flynn, seeking to contest the instrument, had been left 80 per cent of the estate under a previous will.

Contending that hospital records had been falsified, Attorney Eugene Kealy, representing the Flynn sisters, told the court there was "fraud in bringing about this marriage and this will."

He argued that Shanahan, veteran former Republican speaker of the state house of representatives, and a native of Lee county, was "mentally incompetent" during the last seven or eight weeks of his life, that his purported signature on the will was "identical" with the handwriting of his day nurse and at the time Shanahan was incapable of holding a pen.

First Case Mistrial

Timothy I. McKnight, also representing the Misses Flynn, contended that the severance of the will contest from the question of validity of the marriage deprived the women, cousins of Shanahan, from a rightful trial by jury.

The first trial involving the validity of both the marriage and the will ended in a jury disagreement. At the second trial, from which the appeal is made, only the validity of the marriage was at issue.

Declaring the only issue in the case was whether Shanahan was mentally competent at the time of the marriage, Attorney Michael Ahern, representing Mrs. Shanahan, claimed the evidence showed the former speaker was fully aware of his marriage.

He asserted that Shanahan be-

Metal Particles Found Necessary to Continue Life

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 16.—Tiny particles of metal, too small to be seen, were described before the American Public Health Association today as the "catalysts of life."

These catalysts, principally iron and copper, are basically necessary for the continuation of life because without them the human body could not produce hemoglobin, one of the principal constituents of blood, research scientists of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation declared.

In an exhibit before the association's annual meeting they showed how iron is necessary for the manufacture of hemoglobin.

However, unless copper is present along with the iron, no amount of iron is sufficient to correct the condition known as "nutritional anemia" in which too few red blood cells are present to maintain life. This condition is different from that of pernicious anemia caused by failure of the body to produce red cells because of disease.

The copper acts as a carrier for the iron particles, which in turn help to carry other food elements into the blood cells of the body.

Other catalysts of the body are the vitamins, hormones and enzymes, the Wisconsin scientists said. The vitamins and hormones act as mysterious "spark plugs" on the cells of the body to keep them generating heat. The enzymes help to break down food into particles small enough to be absorbed by body cells.

Farm Awards to Boys from Ashton and Walnut

Kansas City, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Ten young Illinois farmers were selected from the 207,000 students of vocational agriculture in the nation today to receive awards at the national Future Farmers of American convention.

The awards are known as the "American Farmer" degrees. Only 166 boys over the nation receive them. The winners must have completed at least three years of high school vocational agriculture with high scholarship; must actually be launched on a successful farming enterprise embodying modern, scientific practices and efficient record keeping; and must have been outstanding in school, community and state rural leadership, community service and agricultural activities.

Each boy must have earned a minimum of $500 in his high school agricultural project work and have that amount invested in permanent farming.

Illinois winners included Omer L. Baumgartner, Walnut, and Burnell Henert, Ashton.

Shiny Stove Thrills Immigrant in New Home; Kills Her, Son, Same Day

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The shiny new gas stove Angelo Micheli bought to surprise his immigrant wife brought death to her and their four-year-old son the same day they arrived from Italy.

Micheli, a hotel cook who had been in this country three years, diligently saved his money to bring his family here. The mother and child arrived yesterday on the liner Rex.

A host of relatives helped Micheli welcome his wife, Amelia, 31, and his son, Bruno, to their small newly-furnished apartment on East 46th street.

Micheli left for work after explaining to his wife how to operate the new stove that had thrilled and delighted her.

When he returned shortly before midnight, he found the apartment full of gas fumes—Bruno lying on the kitchen floor, the body of his wife slumped over a bed in an adjoining room and gas pouring from an open jet. Police said the coffee had boiled over, extinguishing the flame.

Mrs. Micheli had not known she must turn off the jet.

AGREE TO AMEND REPEAL BILL TO PROHIBIT CREDIT

Both Factions Contend 90-Day Rule Would Ensnare U. S.

Washington, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The administration leadership in the Senate agreed today to amend the arms embargo repeal bill to prohibit all credit to warring governments.

Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, proposed the amendments. It would wipe out the present bill's provision allowing credits of not more than 90 days. This provision had been criticized by many Senators on both sides of the arms embargo controversy, who contended 90-day credits would provide an entering wedge for longer credits that might drag this country into war.

In a statement to newspapermen, Pittman said that, inasmuch as it was the intention of his committee to require settlement in cash or cash equivalents as defended by the Attorney General, he deemed it wise to "avoid any confusion or any misunderstanding" by striking out the entire provision.

Other senators predicted that the administration leaders would not make a further change suggested by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and some others that credit to private firms in belligerent nations, as well as to the belligerent governments themselves, be prohibited.

Gave President Discretion

The provision to be removed gave the President discretion to allow the 90-day credits. His committee has considered, Pittman said, that the presidential discretion would be governed by an opinion of the Attorney General in construing the Johnson act. The Johnson act, which forbids credits to nations which have defaulted on their war debts to this country, contains no such 90-day credit exception as that, now being stricken out of the embargo bill, the senator added.

As a result of Pittman's move, administration leaders counted upon picking up the support of a number of Senators who favor repeal of the arms embargo, but who want a "cash and carry" system for other exports which would be more strict than that in the bill.

Such Senators had contended that the provision for 90-day credits made the pending measure a "credit and carry" rather than a "cash and carry" proposal.

Leaders Yielded

Administration leaders had contended from the start that 90-day, non-renewable credit such as that permitted in the bill was the equivalent of cash, but they yielded, Pittman said, "to avoid any misunderstanding."

Meanwhile, Speaker Bankhead told his press conference that he was confident the neutrality bill would pass the House.

He made that statement in response to a request for comment on statements of some Senators that there was a House majority of from 20 to 30 for repeal of the embargo.

A dozen opposition Senators met to discuss strategy against the administration bill today and

Admits Beating Salesman to Get Auto for a Date

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Husky Frank Humel, 29, was held today after authorities said he confessed beating an auto salesman, tying him and stuffing him unconscious into a trunk—all to gain an automobile for "a heavy date with a girl."

Assistant District Attorney John Krogman said Humel, booked on assault and robbery charges, lured the salesman, Harry McGill, 55, to his home in Long Island City Saturday by asking for a demonstration ride.

Krogman said Humel told him that, after driving off in the car, fear that "McGill might die" led him to call St. John's hospital anonymously and inform them they would find a "body in a trunk in the yard" at his address.

Police responded and found the salesman, his skull fractured, inside the locked trunk. His arms were bound and his lips sealed with adhesive tape.

Hospital physicians said McGill, father of four children, was in serious condition.

Humel was seized, Krogman said, when he returned from an evening drive to Beas Mountain with his girl companion.

Beck, on a right end run, romped to the Dixon six and Houden went to the 4½ from where Beck circled the left side of the line for the second touchdown. Grady's plunge through center was good for the extra point.

Short, in the fourth quarter, found a hole through the Dixon line on the 33 and raced for the third touchdown. His attempt through the line for the extra point failed.

TOM HARMON OF MICHIGAN LEADS IN BIG 10 SCORING

Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan's sensational junior halfback, is the Big Ten's leading scorer after the first week of general firing on the conference football front. He scored all 27 of the Wolverines' points against Iowa to take a nine-point lead on Ervin Prasse, Iowa end. Prasse scored three touchdowns Indiana a week ago but did not count a point in Iowa's game with Michigan.

Seventeen players already have scored one or more touchdowns in conference games. All the touchdown scorers are backs except three ends—Prasse, Rankin of Purdue and Rucinski of Indiana. The leading scorers:

Player	School	Pos	td	pt	fg	tp
Harmon	Mich	B	1	4	3	0
Herbert	Iowa	B	2	1	3	1
Kinnick	Inda	B	2	1	3	0
Scott	Ohio St	B	1	1	1	0

Twelve others are tied for third place in scoring. They are Dean and Green, Iowa; Maddox, Brooks, Zimmer, Timpane, Rucinski of Indiana; Langhurst of Ohio State; Rankin and Byelene of Purdue; and Frank and B. Smith of Minnesota.

Breathers Are Ended for Pro Football Teams

Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The fattening-up process for National League teams contending for the pro football championship is over.

Smooth-operating teams in both divisions of the circuit plowed through lower-flight outfits yesterday with a display of tremendous power and cunning, but only a week away is a real test for each of them except the Washington Redskins.

Detroit puts its undefeated and untied record on the line against the Green Bay Packers, who were not scheduled yesterday, and the Chicago Bears play the defending champion New York Giants. Washington draws the Pittsburgh eleven.

Yesterday's four games attracted 126,141 customers. At Detroit, 30,096 saw the Cleveland Rams get away to a 7 to 2 lead on the Lions in the closest game of the day. But a second-period touchdown put the Lions ahead, 8-7, and a 10-yard pass, Darrell Tully to Bill Moore, gave Detroit its second tally and a final count of 15 to 7.

The Giants and Washington likewise trailed early, but came on to win. New York defeated Philadelphia, 27 to 10, and Washington slaughtered Pittsburgh, 44 to 14, leaving the two victors still tied for top spot in the eastern division.

In Chicago, George Halas' Bears romped to an easy 44 to 7 victory over the hapless Chicago three touchdowns against Indiana a week ago but did not count a point in Iowa's game with Michigan.

State Hospital

G. E. PHILLIPS
There was something that smacked of secrecy about our informant as he pulled us aside from the crowd in front of the employes dining room yesterday noon. "Say," he muttered in an almost inaudible stage whisper, "I have a story for you that is a story." Visions of the beat of the ages race through our brain as we asked for details. "Well," he continued, "Tony Dimijan, athletic director, (Anthony Dimijan) has joined Miss Kramer's class in tap dancing for employes and practices with them every day. Mr. Dimijan could not be reached for comment.

So far as we know yesterday's broadcast over station WROK of a musical program by the hospital band, mixed glee clubs, male sextette and Geo. Braden, a student in piano under the direction of the hospital recreation department, was the first ever to be undertaken by this institution. The program was excellent and provided an admirable means of whiling away a dreary Sunday afternoon. Our congratulations to Miss Hona Kramer who conceived and staged the performance, to Amos Patrick, Harshman, Frank J. Gorman, Joseph Edolph and Mrs. B. C. Chaston who assisted in staging the program, and to all the patients participating, particularly George Braden, about whom the announcer said many nice things.

Frank J. Gorman of the recreation staff, who is directing rehearsals for the play "The Indian Princess" that is to be presented by a cast of 47 boys as a feature of the Thanksgiving week celebration, tells us that the boys are to be taught the dance routines that are to be used in the performance during the present week and that a start will be made in familiarizing the boys with the musical numbers that are a feature of the show.

Chas. Hampton, night policeman, ill for some time, expects to return to duty today.

Berlin Claims Disabling Big Enemy Cruiser

Berlin, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The supreme army command said today that the same submarine which sank the British battleship Royal Oak also scored a torpedo hit on the battle-cruiser Repulse, putting her out of commission. The submarine was said to have reached the safety of German waters, and a report from her commander was expected soon.

(The Repulse, commissioned in 1916 and reconstructed in 1936 at a cost of about $5,500,000, displaces 32,000 tons and has a complement of 1,181 to 1,205 men.)

(Heavier than the 29,150-ton Royal Oak which was sunk Saturday, the Repulse carries six 15-inch guns, 20 four-inch guns, including eight for anti-aircraft, and eight torpedo tubes among lesser armaments. She carries four aircraft with catapults.)

The German command apparently was preparing to close its book on the Polish campaign. Its communique today announced that with completion of occupation of the German zone in Poland, it would cease reporting from the east.

The war in the west, it reported, still was inactive with only minor skirmishes and artillery fire.

The report on the Repulse, coming on the heels of the sinking of the Royal Oak, brought a new wave of enthusiasm over Berlin, particularly in official quarters.

Some officials said a simple iron cross would not be enough to honor the submarine commander and predicted he would get something better.

The communique reporting a submarine attack on the Repulse briefly said:

"As reported by the supreme army command the same U-boat which sank the British battleship Royal Oak severely damaged the battleship (SIC) Repulse through a torpedo hit and put it out of commission."

German news broadcasts began with a reading of the communique and then were interrupted with a recording of the German blue-jackets wartime song of "When We Sail Towards England."

At the chancellery, one limousine after another full of generals and admirals arrived. While officials said it was nothing unusual for Hitler to confer with military leaders, the meeting at this psychological moment seemed significant. At large group of enthusiastic citizens gathered in the hope the Fuehrer would appear on the balcony.

The submarine report so far overshadowed everything else that even foreign correspondents failed to present the usual budget of inquiries at press conferences.

Questions regarding Turkey's position were answered again to the effect that her proposed agreement with Soviet Russia was the cardinal point in her relations with foreign nations.

Meanwhile, reports of an air raid by enemy aircraft Saturday night following the firing of anti-aircraft guns protecting Berlin were explained in an official statement which said the shooting was caused by the appearance of a German airplane which had lost its way in the darkness.

Officials said the batteries on the ground were unable to make out the nationality of the plane and shot it down when it flew over forbidden areas. The pilot, however, escaped by parachute, they reported.

NO BRITISH COMMENT

London, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The British Admiralty declined today to comment on a German communique stating that the Nazi submarine which sank the British battleship Royal Oak also scored a torpedo hit on the battle-cruiser Repulse, severely damaging the ship and putting her out of commission.

A spokesman said the attitude of the Admiralty was that it would not go to the trouble of "denying all these reports."

During the first eight months of 1939, the total registration of new passenger cars was 1,821,943 as compared to the same period of last year with 1,250,783 registrations.

Manufacturers Filed Protest Against Proposed Price for Coal

Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The Illinois Manufacturers Association today had on file with the U. S. coal commission a protest against a proposed increase in the price of bituminous coal, particularly to industrial consumers.

The proposed increase, the association has estimated, would amount to from 50 cents to $1 a ton in Illinois—totaling from $30,000,000 to $60,000,000 annually.

In a letter to Percy Tietlow, chairman of the National Bituminous Coal Commission, W. Homer Hartz, president of the association, said that approximately 3,000 Illinois industries had paid $2,985,246,895 in 1937 for materials, fuel, electrical energy and contract work. He said the cost of fuel represented a substantial portion of operating charges in Illinois industry.

Hartz said in his letter that the "tremendous increase in the cost of fuel contemplated by the prices now under consideration would impose a serious and unwarranted burden upon the industries of this state. x x x We believe that the proposed increase x x x is unjust and uneconomic from the standpoint of all concerned. x x x"

HIGH-LIGHTING POLITICS

by John Randall Page

Washington—International issues—the neutrality question—obviously have first place in the Congressional mind. And, for the present, in the public mind.

But there are definite indications of an incubating demand that congress and the administration get down to some of the pressing domestic problems and not be diverted by the foreign situation. Pressure is already being felt by the idle House members. Newspapers back home are becoming critical of the do-nothing policy which is keeping the House sitting by in Washington when there is so much to be done.

Appraising this sentiment over the country and assuming its growth as the war hysteria continues to subside, it is almost certain that it will lead (1) to a demand that Congress get to work on internal matters, including that of national defense; and (2) that congress remain in session, now that it is there, rather than following the Roosevelt dictates and adjourning after it has disposed of the neutrality bill.

Washington has become accustomed in recent years to unprecedented situations. But there has been none stranger than the present one. Admittedly congress has a great lot of work to do in the next session. And with the election, preceded by the national conventions coming up, there will be the usual desire for an early adjournment next summer.

Much of the legislation must, under the Constitution, originate in the House for it is the incubator of appropriations and taxes.

No one can doubt that there will be increased appropriations for national defense and valuable weeks are now being lost in our preparations. No one can doubt that revision of the tax laws must come. No one can doubt that the relief question will loom large in the next session. All of these are matters for the House to originate through its ways and means, its appropriations, and its military and naval affairs committees.

Yet, the 435 members of the House are withheld from action by their leaders, who in turn are stopped by the White House. Polls of public opinion show an almost unanimous demand that the national defenses be strengthened. Hearings could be proceeding before the House committees, with a view to having defense legislation enacted by the House and ready for the Senate when it completes action on the neutrality bill. Instead, under the present program, it will be sometime next spring before congress can act on this problem which is even more important to America than whether we do or do not embargo shipments abroad.

That is hard for even the most experienced Washington observer to figure out. With a "limited national emergency" declared by the president, congress is told, "don't do anything about it."

Years ago congress placed a statutory limit on the outside limit of the national debt of $45,000,000,000. Today that figure actually has been exceeded, despite efforts of the New Deal to cover its balances. Congress will of necessity have to raise the limit during the next few months. And, at the same time it may have to do something about federal employees. Figures just released by the Civil Service Commission show jobs under the New Deal are now approaching the million mark. On June 30 the total was 920,310, as compared with the previous peak of 917,760 at the end of the war in 1918.

SPEAKER URGES A COOPERATION OF HOME AND SCHOOL

Rockford Superintendent Addresses Meeting Here Friday Night

The best possible cooperation between home and school is the way to give children normal, happy lives—the foundation for living adult lives—Selmer H. Berg, superintendent of the Rockford public schools told parents and teachers attending the closing session of the seventeenth annual conference of district No. 3, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Friday evening in the Dixon high school auditorium. Approximately 150 parents and teachers were present from Lee, Ogle, Whiteside, and Winnebago counties, which comprise the district.

"It is tragedy when parents and teachers drive the child to different channels than the innate potentialities indicate," Mr. Berg declared. He believes parents and teachers have been slow to recognize the differences in children, both at home and in school. "Parents and teachers, home and school should have a combined cooperative objective in the development of boys and girls. Our job is to try to discover the individual abilities of children and to provide them with environment to bring out those abilities," he continued.

Program Follows Dinner

The evening program followed a dinner at the Methodist church, and was opened with music by a string ensemble directed by Orville Westcott. Mr. Olmstead of Prophetstown played the piano for group singing, and also acted as accompanist for singing during the dinner hour.

John A. Torrens, superintendent of the Lee county schools, greeted the group. Winston Atkins and Marilee Burns, Dixon students, entertained with instrumental music, preceding the talk by Mr. Berg, who was introduced by Miss Lillian O. Bollenbach of Tampico, the district director.

An exhibit of posters, program, free literature from the district board, and scrapbooks occupied the vestibule of the auditorium throughout the afternoon and evening. Mrs. William Haefliger was at the piano for group singing during the afternoon, and Mrs. Lamb of Tampico acted as leader.

Lancaster Welcomes Group
A. H. Lancaster, superintendent of the Dixon public schools, welcomed the group. Miss Grubb of Tampico read an account of the 1938 conference, which was held in Oregon.

Special music was furnished by a chorus of 65 school girls, directed by Miss Carolyn Bergstedt, and accompanied by Marilee Burns. Speakers included Mrs. F. Russell Lyon of Chicago, first vice president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. H. H. Siddall of Chicago, chairman of study courses and publications; I. C. P. T.; Mrs. C. W. Balch of Chicago, chairman of recreation; I. C. P. T.; Mrs. Raymond Miller of Chicago, chairman of juvenile protection; I. C. P. T.; and Mrs. E. M. Bixby of Rockford, chairman of the National Parent-Teacher Magazine, I. C. P. T.

Invitations for the 1940 conference were extended by Sterling, Morrison and Rockford.

COMPROMISES IN SOVIET-FINNISH TALK FORECAST

Finn Delegation Returns Home for Further Instructions

Moscow, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's negotiations for strengthening her hand in eastern Europe struck a slower pace today, with foreign circles anticipating merely compromise agreements with Finland and Turkey and speculating on possible future Russian moves in the Balkans.

The Finnish envoy, Dr. Juro Kusti Paasikivi, returned to Helsinki last night by special train. He was expected back here within five days, but possibly not until after the meeting of Scandinavian kings and the Finnish president Wednesday in Stockholm.

Unofficial reports said that Finland, refusing to be drawn into the Russian orbit as have Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, would concede certain Baltic islands for Russian naval bases, but would balk at a military alliance or concessions on the strategic Aaland islands.

While a Hungarian diplomatic delegation came to Moscow for an undisclosed purpose, a Turkish mission was believed preparing to depart shortly, possibly after signing some cautious agreement respecting Russian safeguards on the passage of warships through the Dardanelles into the Black sea.

Turkey Takes Precaution
(In Istanbul, it became known Turkey had taken precautionary military steps because of reports that Russian troops were massing in the Caucasus on the Turkish and Iranian-Persian border. The Moscow radio Sunday night denied troop reinforcements there.)

(Authoritative sources in Istanbul said Turkey's foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, had refused flatly Russian demands for recognition of the partition of Poland, formation of a Russian-German sponsored neutral bloc in the Balkans, and Russian and Bulgarian expansion at the expense of Rumania.)

Rumors long have circulated here that Russia intends to try to dominate the Balkans, and now that Germany is engaged in war in the west, may demand the return of Bessarabia from Rumania, which obtained that oil-rich territory from Russia in the post-World war division.

A German trade delegation remained in Moscow. Unofficial German sources acknowledged that Germany had abandoned rivalry with Russia in the north-east, but expressed belief no such free hand would be given the Soviet in the Balkans.

Horner Glad to Be Back on Job; Is Much Heavier

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Governor Horner, "glad to be back home again," swung gradually today into the routine of official business after ending 11 weeks of rest and recuperation from illness at Highland Park, Ill.

Fourteen pounds heavier and no longer attended by a nurse, the governor returned here by train Saturday afternoon from Chicago. Yesterday he took a 20-mile motor drive to New Salem state park and looked over the executive mansion grounds and his pedigree Dalmatian dogs.

Miss Anne Lou Boozer, the nurse who had attended the governor ever since he went to Miami Beach, Fla., last winter to seek recovery from a serious heart ailment, returned to Florida directly from Highland Park and did not accompany Horner here.

During the week end the governor deferred the start of official conferences expected to result in the early calling of a special session of the legislature. He said upon his arrival he hadn't decided upon a date for the special session, or the subjects that would be included within the purview of the call.

'40 Legion Convention Awarded to Danville
Chicago, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The 1940 state American Legion convention will be held in Danville, beginning August 1.

Members of the executive committee of the Illinois department made the selection for next year's convention at a meeting here yesterday. They also confirmed 250 appointments of new state Legion officers made by Maj. L. N. Bittenger of Onarga, newly-elected commander for Illinois.

Chicago was the only city which has bid for the 1940 convention, said William C. Mundt of Bloomington, who was named department adjutant for the 12th consecutive year.

Included among appointments confirmed yesterday were: J. B. Murphy, Bloomington, treasurer and chairman of the finance committee; Roland V. Libonati, Chicago, parliamentarian; Virgil C. Luttrell, Aledo, Judge Advocate, and Dr. Norman Sheehan, Rockford surgeon.

The committee said that Major Kaywin Kennedy of Bloomington was named chairman of a newly-organized committee on reserve officers training corps and Ted Reinhardt of Flossmoor was appointed chairman of a new committee on conservation.

Kinsella, Well Known Democrat, Dies Saturday

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Richard F. Kinsella, 76, widely known Democratic political figure and former major league baseball scout who died Saturday night following a heart attack.

Long a leader in the Sangamon county Democratic organization, Kinsella supported Governor Horner's first campaign in 1932 and was appointed by the governor as superintendent of the states oil inspection division, a position he held at his death.

For 20 years prior to 1932 Kinsella scouted baseball talent for the New York Giants, and was credited with the discovery of such players as Henne Groh, Larry Doyle, Arthur Fletcher and Ferdie Schupp. Friends said it was Kinsella who recommended the Giants acquire Pitcher Carl Hubbell.

Kinsella has been seriously ill in St. John's hospital for ten days and suffered a second heart attack several hours before he died.

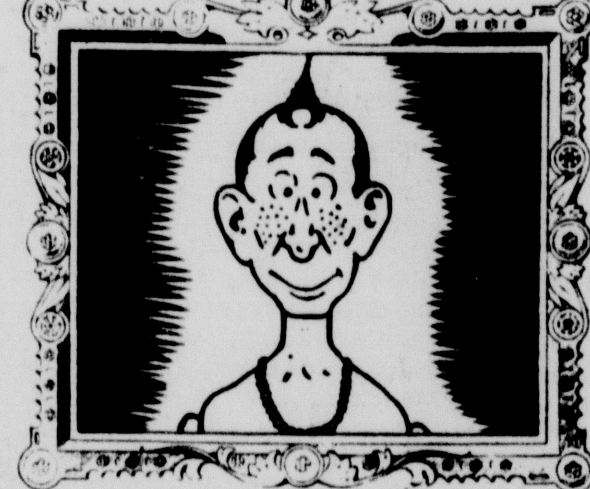

Monsignor M. A. Tarent will officiate at a requiem mass at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in St. Joseph's Catholic church, and the Rev. Patrick Romayne of Chicago will deliver the sermon. A half hour earlier there will be services at the residence.

Illinois schools approved today were Lake Forest college, Lewis Institute (Chicago), University of Chicago and Wheaton college.

THE HOUSE OF PEACE

This is the peace the allies built.
This is the Lithuanian capital of Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies built.
This is a Polish general who, way back in 1920, seized the city of Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies built.

This is the Italian admiral who bombarded the Greek island of Corfu because the allies didn't stop the Poles who invaded Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies conceived.

This is the land of Manchuria annexed by Japan because the allies didn't stop Italy from bombing Corfu nor Poland from stealing Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies developed.

This is the land of Jehol nibbled off by Japan because the allies hadn't stopped Japan from grabbing Manchuria nor Italy from shooting up Corfu nor Poland from taking Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies couldn't be bothered about.

This is the ancient kingdom of Ethiopia conquered by Italian fire and sword because the allies didn't stop Japan from ravishing Jehol and Manchuria nor Italy from bombing Corfu nor Poland from grabbing Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies forgot.

This is the country of Austria seized by Germany because the allies didn't stop Italy from seizing Ethiopia nor Japan from taking Jehol and Manchuria nor Italy from frightening Corfu nor Poland from shop-lifting Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies guaranteed.

This is northern China, its inhabitants massacred and its cities razed by Japan because the allies didn't stop Germany from taking Austria, Italy from invading Ethiopia, Japan from seizing Jehol and Manchuria nor Italy from bombing Corfu nor Poland from the grand larceny of Wilno that lay surrounded by the peace the allies invented.

This is Czechoslovakia now ruled by Germany because the allies didn't stop Japan in north China, Germany in Austria, Italy in Ethiopia, Japan in Jehol and Manchuria, Italy at Corfu nor the Polish general at the gates of Wilno which lay surrounded by the peace the allies pledged, cross their hearts and hope to die.

These are six other small Baltic states, scared to death or preparing to fight Russia because the allies couldn't stop Germany in Poland and wouldn't stop Japan in north China, Germany in Czechoslovakia and Austria, Italy in Ethiopia, Japan in Jehol and Manchuria, Italy at Corfu nor Poland at Wilno which lay surrounded by the peace the allies concocted.

This is the United States of America whose President says the allies must have help although they treacherously abandoned Wilno, Corfu, Manchuria, Jehol, Ethiopia, Austria, north China, Czechoslovakia, and smelled so bad their own people couldn't stand the odor any longer and forced them into war to restore the peace that once surrounded the Lithuanian capital of Wilno.

AMERICANS WANT THEIR WASHING

Americans are, in some ways, an even funnier race than the French are alleged to be in the words of the old song. Come war or revolution, come weal or woe, they want their creature comforts.

The complaints of some of the passengers on the Iroquois that the passage homeward from Europe was rough and the service terrible makes us think of one of the greatest of the short stories of W. Somerset Maugham, which he called "Mr. Harrington's Washing."

Mr. Harrington was an American in Russia at the time of the revolution, seeking certain contracts. So thoroughly inculcated in him were his midwestern ways, that he had no understanding whatever of what was going on around him. He saw everything in terms of his own life and home surroundings. A meek enough man, Mr. Harrington stood by until he got his contract, from a cynical official who finally signed it knowing that his government was doomed and that it meant nothing. As revolution lowered overhead, Mr. Harrington was finally persuaded to leave the city, but insisted that no decent person would do so without proper clean shirts. His laundry had been set out, and those slovenly Russians, who never seemed to do anything right, had not returned it. That the talk of revolution could really be serious never entered Mr. Harrington's head. Such things simply didn't happen. So he went out into the dark streets to get his washing.

But the patrols of irresponsible soldiers and revolutionaries roaming the streets were intent on other things than Mr. Harrington and his laundry. The next morning anxious friends found Mr. Harrington sprawled in a gutter, riddled with bullets, a futile and pathetic package of laundry still grasped in his cold hand.

A few of the Americans in Europe for the summer holidays seem to have a little of Mr. Harrington's spirit. They resent that Europe should interrupt their holidays with a mere war, and they do not propose to be bothered by it. And when ships are sent to bring them home, there are some to complain that the ships did not ride smoothly in a storm, and that cabin accommodations and service were pretty poor.

The State Department has now announced officially that "each American citizen in belligerent countries desiring to come back has had an opportunity to return." Ambassador Kennedy has twice warned Americans in England to go home unless their business was urgent and necessary. Six weeks of actual war have followed at least two weeks of urgent crisis. Yet ships returning from Europe come in half-loaded.

There is a war going on in Europe. Europeans are serious about it, even if a few Americans seem not to be. Will the time come when the United States is asked to go to war to defend the rights of American summer trippers to travel through war zones in staterooms with private bath?

NO TROUBLE

It's nice to know that there isn't going to be any trouble over the explorations and claims in the Antarctic. Admiral Byrd has given assurance that he will confine his explorations this winter to areas in which the British and American claims do not conflict, and leave any conflicts to be peacefully adjusted at some time when Britain is in a better position to give attention to them.

That is certainly soothing, for it's certain enough that if claims to this barren and yet unexplored waste could not be adjusted without trouble, there would be little hope of territorial adjustments in crowded Europe or the more-inhabited parts of the globe.

The problem of the Antarctic, fortunately, is one world problem that can be taken coolly.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON
(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

Washington, Oct. 15 — Smoke does not necessarily mean there is fire in Washington. Manufacture of synthetic clouds is the leading industry of the capital.

Latest formidable fleecy vapor to gather on the horizon is the authoritative suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt might ask Mr. Garner to join him in seeking a third term. This one came out of a chimney other than that of the White House or the Washington hotel (where Mr. G. lives). Some say it came out of an accordion, the weird instrument upon which Mr. Roosevelt's banisher Thomas Corcoran relaxes from his daily toil of working the White House basement bellows. In any event there will be no rain from that one.

Mr. Garner would not run for a third term with George Washington. He is self-constitutionally opposed to third terms.

A lot of political clouds are going to be dissipated soon, including that thunderhead about the war making Mr. Roosevelt's re-nomination and re-election a foregone conclusion.

Nothing inside confirms that supposition. The situation seems to be that the Democratic party is reunited on foreign policy. Current congressional debate naturally puts accent upon that happy state of affairs. But as soon as the pending ship bill is out of the way, the country will have to get back to domestic issues. The January session will bring such issues to the foreground. That is where harmony stops.

Possibility that this country will enter the war before the nominating conventions next June is too remote for anyone to see. If the country is neutral and agreed on foreign policy, the basic reasoning upon which third term conclusions now are being offered will not exist.

Anyway (and this is still merely recounting the most sensible sounding arguments you hear from the political maestros here) whoever indicated Mr. Roosevelt wanted a third term, except Ickes? The President's friends and most of the news observers think he does not want one, but that he might be persuaded to take it, if pressed. That means he probably would not get it as the situation obviously requires open ardent work on his part. The nomination will not come to him on a platter.

There is more reverence for Jim Farley around here lately. It is not only the postmasters convention here, although it gave an inkling of how many friends he has. A wholly impartial analyst recently surveyed 36 of the 48 states personally and returned here with the conclusion that more than a majority of the delegates to the next Democratic convention will be very good friends of Farley—not necessarily pledged to his nomination, but boys he knows by their front names. This conclusion is verified by accountable political authorities.

FDR is beginning to squirm in his chair at the length of the Senate debate (you will recall Foreign Chairman Pittman predicted a vote last week). The President apparently asked Leader Barkley to find out when he would get the good news. Barkley stopped opposition Senator Bennett Champ Clark in the hall and the following exchange ensued: Barkley: "When are you fellows going to get through talking?" Clark: "Oh, it will be some time yet."

Barkley: "Oh, lotta people are asking me when the vote is going to come?"

Clark: "Just tell them it will come when the debate ceases." Mr. Roosevelt's vague remarks about a South American gold deal apparently referred to a promise made to Foreign Minister Aranha of Brazil during the visit last summer. It did not get out then, but officials who are usually in pitch with the White House are now humming the suggestion that Mr. Morgenthau wants to advance $50,000,000 in gold to help stabilize Brazilian currency. Legislation would be needed, and the treasury secretary is expected to recommend it at the January session. Brazil would pay back with her own gold production in a number of years.

In the warming oven also is a $4,000,000 credit deal with Uruguay through the export-import bank. It will be announced soon.

A Harvard classmate, returned from South America, has relayed privately to the President a story about certain German merchant ships being armed with giant booms to carry and launch 6 or 8 one hundred tons pocket submarines. The President investigates everything. Navy is looking into this one.

As a state department official puts it:

"The blitzpeace of Herr Hitler was not successful; now we will see what his blitzkrieg will do."

The Creeping Man

By Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: Mrs. Murchison is shocked when Tuck finds a pipe that was never out of her husband's hand. Bunny sleuths, also, and discovers that Mrs. Murchison does not know where her husband is. That night, the study is broken into.

Chapter Eight
Michael Tells All
"Come in, Tuck," Michael said. "Pretty smart guy, whoever he is. That clatter warned him. He shut the door behind him, picked the key from the floor and turned the lock."

The smaller of the two big rugs was hung over the glass doors that led to the dining room. The blinds on every window were drawn close and the Indian blanket from the couch was lying on the floor as if it had been hung over the panes of the long glass door which led to the sun porch. "He certainly wasn't taking any chances on being seen," she decided.

Michael was surveying the room minutely. "Now what the devil do you suppose he was after?" he said wonderingly. "There isn't anything in the place worth stealing."

"Hidden passages," Tuck said lightly. A sudden thought had struck her, but she was not letting Michael know all she knew. "Secret rooms," she repeated.

At the moment another tap sounded sharply, and Tuck, for all her nonchalance, jumped. Michael grinned at her. "It's Bunny," he said, and shot the bolt on the dining room door. Bunny was rapping on the door to the kitchen, and saying, "Let me in, you two! This door's locked."

Michael turned the key and opened the door. Bunny, calm and untroubled, stood there with her hands in the pockets of her black silk dressing gown.

"What's up?" she asked coolly. "A party? Or are they charivariing? I heard pots and pans banging."

"Burglars," Michael said briefly. "Oh. Well, well. Where's Tuck?"

"Surveying the ruins," Bunny strolled through the dining room and looked into the disordered study. "What was burgled?" she asked Tuck. "Do we keep the family diamonds here?"

"It's true, Bunny, honestly," Tuck said. "I never saw anybody tapping on the walls."

"But whatever for, Michael?" Bunny's face expressed the sincerest amazement.

"I really didn't inquire," Michael told her. "It certainly is beyond me. I don't understand it at all."

Tuck looked at him scornfully. "Isn't that funny," she said. "You really ought to have things better arranged. I imagine not being able to understand it."

Bunny laughed suddenly. "You know what I think," she said calmly. "I think it's about time you stopped being mysterious. Michael, Tuck's getting cross. And if you really don't understand this burglary, maybe you could use a little help in unraveling your little problem. The Problem of the Missing Professor."

Michael swallowed. "How in the devil did you ferret out this business of a Missing Professor? Nobody knows he's missing. Not a soul. Not his most intimate friend."

"Begins does," Bunny said quickly. "And Mrs. Murchison knows," Tuck supplemented.

Michael groaned. "You haven't been around asking them questions, have you?"

"I would have served you perfectly well right if we had," Tuck informed him. "Trying to keep us in the dark while you sneaked around finding out all sorts of interesting things."

"Not very many," Michael muttered. "Will you tell us all you know?" "I am about," he said. "I will."

"Think—Suspect—Wonder"—Tuck dropped her head, and big tears came down the fireplace and rucked her knees excitedly. "Go on, then," she commanded. "Start at the beginning. Is he missing?"

"He is," Tuck said. "He disappeared?" "He did."

"When?" Michael told her. "Can't he find him?" "They cannot," he explained in detail the very careful search made by the police.

The two girls listened in silence. Bunny's eyes on the toe of her slipper, Tuck's following Michael's lips as he spoke. There was a little silence.

"So you think they suspect— they wonder?" "Exactly," Michael agreed. "You have it, honey. They think they suspect and they wonder. But they don't know. And that's why we're here."

"I knew it," Tuck said. "Michael, Forrester, why in the name of goodness didn't you tell us, Bunny and me, right at the beginning? We've lost an awful lot of time. What we should have done at the beginning was to get acquainted with the Devoes and Mrs. Murchison and have Duncan Murchison out here to lunch and start finding things out."

Michael tilted her chin with his finger. "I knew it," he answered your own question there, Tuck. That's exactly what we shouldn't have done. Dad expressly stated that we were to act as plain like detectives, not more so. And we have, unless—

"Unless I created some suspicion snooping around. Well, I didn't."

"Then we've been here a week without a ripple of curiosity around the place we dropped into."

"What about Miss Lissey?" "There is that question. Unless your imagination Tuck bounded her fist on the arm of her chair. "The next person who says that to me will get poison in his soup," she said flatly. It isn't imagination. It's sense. I suppose next you'll say I imagined Mrs. Murchison was frightened stiff when I took over that pipe. Or that Bunny imagined what she said to her over the phone."

"What pipe? Who said to Bunny over the phone? Said what?"

Tuck and Bunny explained that together, in a sort of recitative duet, one taking up where the other left off. Michael listened with the deepest attention, but he was most interested in the story of the pipe.

"Can you repeat her exact words, Tuck?" he asked anxiously. He had lit a cigarette now, and was listening with brows squinted to keep out the smoke.

"She said, 'Where have you found it? It is never out of his hand.' She has a French accent, you know, that's what's the matter with her tenses."

"Yes . . . or . . . she really wonders where he is . . . That thing will take a lot of figuring out, Tuck. She was very surprised to see it?"

"She certainly was," Michael said. "Bunny suddenly looking up at him keenly. 'There's one thing I don't quite get. From what you've said there has been nothing found that would lead the police to suspect foul play. A man's disappeared, and lots of men disappear and turn up later. He isn't anybody in particular. Is he? Just an ordinary person . . . it's quite possible he'll turn up by himself. That's what his relatives say. There's no reason why they don't turn out of the way that you know of.'"

"One Finger Too Many?" "Well, Bunny?"

"Then, why have the police taken such a hold of this case? What makes them think it's more than just one more temporarily inexplicable disappearance?"

Michael considered. "There's one finger too many in this pie," he said slowly after a minute. "There's someone standing on the edge and watching . . . someone who isn't supposed to know the Professor is missing, someone who sent an anonymous letter to the police asking 'WHERE ARE YOUR DIAMONDS?'"

"Diamonds?" said Tuck incredulously. "Diamonds? A university professor with diamonds?" Bunny echoed.

"Even so, my children. But his wife says he hadn't any. His brother doesn't know anything about them. And yet . . . somebody else hints about them. Is it because . . . does that other person mistrust Professor Murchison's relatives? You see?"

Tuck caught her breath. There was a little silence. "Then, that's what they might have been after here tonight," she went on in a queer tone. "Diamonds."

Michael looked about him. "Hardly, honey. Not in a prosaic house in the twentieth century. I doubt if there are any diamonds, only I'd like to know who wrote that letter."

"Well, Michael . . . if they weren't after diamonds, what were they after?"

Michael got up and went over to the big desk before he spoke. "Where did you find that pipe, Tuck?" he asked.

She went over beside him. The right hand side of the desk was a row of drawers. Above them, underneath the top of the desk, was a board resting in the groove made for it. Tuck pulled it out a little way, and pushed it back again. Beneath it was disclosed a shallow drawer, little more than a pencil tray, perhaps an inch and a half deep. In it lay a ruler, half a dozen pencil stubs and some wads of torn paper.

"There," she said, "lying in that drawer, you can see the mark where it buried the wood." Michael bent and examined it. Burned the wood," he said softly to himself.

"He stepped back, sat down in the big chair before the desk and reached out for the handle of the drawer. It was just at a comfortable distance.

"It means it dropped in there while it was burning, doesn't it, Michael?" Tuck said very quietly.

"Dropped in there while it was burning . . . and then he never took it out again. Why? A pipe that was never out of his hand. So suddenly, that night that he didn't think to pick it up?"

There was silence. Michael pulled the little drawer out further and looked in, as if the answer to his question might lie there. Nothing but those pencils and the ruler, and a wad of torn newspaper. Absently he picked up the wad of paper and spread it out between his fingers.

As was as if he had had his question answered at the moment. For on the paper, clear and distinct, was the print of a bloody hand.

Continued tomorrow.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 15.

The Golden Text was, "If any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John 2:1).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage. His mission was both individual and collective. He did life's work aright not only in justice to himself, but in mercy to mortals—to show them how to do theirs, but not to do it for them nor to relieve them of a single responsibility" (p. 18).

SO SHALL YE REAP

Roanoke, Va.—(AP)—Mrs. S. S. Scruggs, who had already complained to her husband that "you smoke once a day and that's all day," probably said "I told you so" when she saw a tomato gathered from a plant Mr. Scruggs had set out.

The fruit the plant bore was a small tomato in the shape of a pipe, with a perfectly defined bowl and a two-inch stem.

DIXON HOSPITAL AGAIN APPROVED

One of 2,720 Given O. K. by American College of Surgeons Today

Official announcement of the 1939 list of 2,720 approved hospitals in the United States, Canada, and a few other countries, including the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital, Dixon, was made at the twenty-second annual hospital standardization conference which opened this morning in Philadelphia in conjunction with the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons. The announcement was made by Dr. George Crile of Cleveland, chairman of the board of regents of the college, who declared:

"On the first list of approved hospitals of the American College of Surgeons 22 years ago, the names of only 89 hospitals appeared. The balance of the approved hospitals have in that relatively short interval earned a right to appear and to be retained on the approved list. Even those originally approved which still appear on the list have had to strive for betterment in order to meet enlarged conceptions of the minimum standard requirements in the light of mechanical and scientific progress. Behind the statistics has been a powerful impulse to improvement engendered by hospital standardization, and this impulse has been shared by a great many hospitals that have not yet won approval. They are working zealously to overcome difficulties, and they will succeed in doing so if the public gives them the support that it should, in view of the benefits that it will derive. One out of every fourteen persons in a community, on the average, is a patient in a hospital each year. Does it not therefore behoove the public to encourage adequate care of these patients, and also to cooperate with the hospital in health conservation efforts? Medical science, solicitous for the welfare of the patient, has set a high standard of approval for hospital service; equally solicitous, and demanding equally high standards, should be every enlightened community."

Minimum Requirements
Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, Associate Director of the College and in charge of its hospital activities, stated:

"There is no reason why any hospital caring for the sick today cannot meet the requirements of the minimum standard, which, briefly stated, embrace:

1. Modern physical plant, assuring the patient safety, comfort, and efficient care.

2. Clearly defined organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations.

3. Carefully selected governing board with complete and final authority in the management of the institution.

4. Competent, well trained superintendents responsible to the governing board for carrying out all the policies of the hospital.

5. Adequate and efficient personnel, properly organized and competently supervised.

6. Organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians and surgeons.

7. Adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision.

8. Accurate and complete medical records, readily accessible, for research and follow-up.

9. Regular group conferences of the administrative staff and of the medical staff for reviewing activities and results so as to maintain a high plane of scientific efficiency.

10. A humanitarian spirit—the primary consideration being the best care of the patient."

Giant Snow Cruiser
For Use in Antarctic
Nearing Completion

Chicago, Oct. 16—(AP)—A giant snow cruiser for use in the government's forthcoming Antarctic exploratory expedition was near completion today.

Its three-ton wheels, with 10-foot rubber tires each weighing 1,500 pounds, are being assembled in the Pullman Car Manufacturing company plant where the cruiser is being built for the research Foundation of Armour Institute of Technology.

Harold Vagborg, director of the foundation, said the 45,000-pound cruiser, which looks like a cross between an overland bus and a tank, would be ready to start from Chicago Oct. 21 or 23 on an overland trip to Boston to be loaded aboard ship.

Before that, however, the cruiser will be tested in the Indiana sand dunes.

More Than 130 Clubwomen Hear Analysis of Design

"A critically-controlled act which has for its result an expression of a feeling in objective form" was the definition of art given to members of the Dixon Woman's club Saturday afternoon by Miss Clara McGowan, assistant professor of art at Northwestern university in Evanston. Miss McGowan's subject was "The Analysis of Design," and her lecture was heard by more than 130 members and guests who gathered in the Guild room of St. Luke's Episcopal church for the club's annual Guest Day program.

"All the arts belong together; all belong to the world; and all are timeless," the speaker said. "It is nice to feel," she continued, "that although these are troubled times and beautiful works of art are being destroyed in parts of the world, the great forces of art will never die."

Miss McGowan listed for her audience some of the different types of art, describing form as "a particular kind of organization in which the art elements are so integrated that to change one part would affect the whole." Among art elements she mentioned were line, pattern, rhythm, use of dark and light, and variety in size.

The first record of art was left by primitive man, who expressed himself mainly through art, she said. In her opinion, it is regrettable that with the development of art work of the machine age, much of the old art of working with the hands has become lost. In illustration, she pointed out the whittling of intricate ship models and wooden ornaments which adorned the homes of a few generations ago.

One of the earliest motifs of design was a circle, suggested by the sun, the clubwomen learned. Later, a half-sun, or half-circle, together with horizontal and straight lines were combined in various designs. Patterns for Persian rugs and shawls were taken from the cypress tree, which the workers developed by doubling their fists, stamping into the dye and then onto the cloth. Borders of curved lines, and the night-gale and rose bush motifs were added later.

The favorite design of the Egyptians was the double fish, and Italian textiles show use of plant formations, Miss McGowan said. All primitive artists selected materials at hand for artistic patterns, developed from a few basic designs and a creative imagination.

Looking ahead to the holiday season, the speaker suggested that her listeners experiment with either a subdued green and brilliant red, or a vivid green and softer red tone in planning decorations for Christmas if they would avoid the unsightly clash the two colors often produce.

Miss McGowan then proceeded to analyze a number of designs from her own collection of art articles, ranging from textiles to wood carvings, gathered from all parts of the world.

She displayed block printing from Hawaii, where dyes are obtained from the bark of trees and stamped by hand; pieces of Japanese printing on cloth, illustrating the method of resist dyeing, developed by waxing parts which are to remain white and adding colors in order of their intensity; curtain material from Athens, demonstrating use of the circle and square design in block printing; spoons from goat's horn and tortoise shell from the Rockies and Alaska, showing artistic use of ordinary materials.

Also in her collection were paper knives of olive wood; wooden figurines from Russia; a pair of white caribou moccasins, a gift to the speaker from a Mrs. Swift, now 72 years old, who was the first white woman to live in Jasper, Alaska; examples of Mexican lifetime studying it," she remarked. Miss Dement also announced the subject for her department's first bulletin board would be "Hungarian Works of Art," arranged by Mrs. Z. Glatter.

Dixon Student Plays

Special music was provided by Miss Jean Smith, one of Dixon's younger advanced piano students, who entertained with two pleasing solos, the Chopin Waltz in E Major and "Air de Ballet," (Mozz-kowski). Mrs. Burl Lepird, the music chairman announced the numbers.

Mrs. Earl Auman, the club president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. I. B. Potter led the opening song, "God Bless America," with Mrs. B. R. Jacobson at the piano.

Mrs. L. E. Dunkelberger, finance chairman, announced plans for a benefit movie. The club agreed to contribute $10 to the Girl and Boy Scout fund, to make a donation for the new Woman's club headquarters in Chicago, and granting of junior memberships in the Dixon Concert League to five worthy young musicians of the city.

Names of ten new members were read, including Mesdames R. L. Warner, C. C. Lund, Louis Berrettini, Earle D. Stitzel, Melville Hayes, Carl Snavey, Robert Lesage, Clarence H. Woods, H. A. Ahrens and James Richardson.

Mrs. George Christianson, chairman of the literature and library extension department, announced the first book review for 3:30 p. m. Friday, Nov. 3, in the high school music room. Mrs. W. W. Roat will review the book, "Escape," a story of Germany.

The first rehearsal of the Woman's club chorus was scheduled for this afternoon at St. Paul's Lutheran church, under the direction of Mrs. Potter. Mrs. Lex Hartzell, public welfare chairman, asked for donations of extra straight-backed chairs for the Girl Scout office.

Mrs. L. N. Deutsch, parliamentarian, reminded the members of the fall meeting of the Lee County Federation for Oct. 27 at Franklin Grove, at which C. Wayland Brooks will speak on "International Affairs," and the annual regional institute for District 12 and 13, Oct. 19 at Ottawa.

Miss Dement will give a lecture on the subject, "Some Women in Art," from a Rockford radio station between 3 and 3:30 p. m., Nov. 14. Miss Esther Barton said the next club speaker would be Ataloo of Redland, Calif., noted Indian lecturer and singer.

Bronze chrysanthemums and ferns in a silver bowl, with yellow tapers at either side, were attractive on the refreshment table. Mrs. Robert Ayers, chairman of the hostess committee, was assisted by Miss Barton in pouring.

The condition of E. W. Smith, who celebrated his 93rd birthday July 26, and who has been critically ill for some time, was reported improved today.

The accordion was invented in Vienna in 1829.

Rose Hager and Robert Sterling Have Church Rite

The Rev. Father B. Norman Burke read the nuptial service at 11 o'clock this morning at St. Luke's Episcopal church, in which Miss Rose Hager, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hager of Nauvoo, exchanged wedding vows with Robert Sterling, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sterling of 221 Dement avenue.

Organ selections by the bridegroom's brother, the Rev. Chandler Sterling of Wilmette, preceded the simple ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by George Campbell, chose black accessories for her wedding gown of midnight blue velvet. White roses formed her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Raymond Toot, (Eleanor Sterling), the bridegroom's sister, was the bride's only attendant. She wore diamond velvet with black accessories, and carried Talsman roses.

James Bales, Jr. served as best man. Louis Salzman and John White were ushers.

Mrs. Campbell was attired in light blue wool, and the bridegroom's mother was wearing black velvet with accessories to match.

A wedding luncheon was served for the immediate family, following the ceremony. After a brief wedding trip through northern Wisconsin, Mr. Sterling and his bride will be at home at 919 Peoria avenue.

Mrs. Sterling, a graduate of Nauvoo high school, has resided in Dixon for the past five years. The bridegroom, a graduate of Dixon high school with the class of 1932, later attended the University of Iowa for two years. He is now an assistant registered pharmacist at the Sterling drug store, which is operated by his father.

Out of town guests attending the wedding included the Rev. and Mrs. Chandler Sterling of Wilmette, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chandler of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Laura Sterling and Mrs. Robert Cowles of Chicago.

Wingert, Mr. and Mrs. William Haefliger, Senator and Mrs. George Dixon, Mrs. Collins-Dysart, Mrs. Ben B. FANFARE

MONDAY'S WASH

The old gem about "That's all right, it will come out in the wash," doesn't hold true of the stain we found on our local predictions after last week's prep school football games. After strutting around with a 667 percentage for the previous week end, it was time something happened to slap us back in line. It did! We came out of this week end with a measly 286 with five wrong and only two right. We took some awfully flimsy. In the national collegiate scene Paul Potts did very well with a percentage of 647 on the 20 games. A break down of the results showed he had 11 correct, six wrong, two tie games and one postponed affair. The St. Mary's-Loyola game is to be played Dec. 3 and the U. C. L. A.-Stanford and Minnesota-Purdue tilts ended in knots. Paul predicted the Creighton-Drake score right on the nose when he said "Creighton, 7 to 0" and he also was accurate on the team scores of Ohio State, Texas, Mercer, and Fordham. Next week the predictions will be in the hands of John Mitchell, coach at Franklin Grove high school and a former Dixon athlete.

IRONY OF FOOTBALL

Halfback Beck, a sophomore on the Belvidere reserve squad was the victim of a strange twist of fate here Saturday afternoon. After playing outstanding football in three quarters of the preliminary game and scoring two touchdowns, he was taken out of the game, probably to be saved for the heavyweight encounter. In attempting to leap over the chain barrier between the playing field and the practice gridiron, he tripped and threw his elbow out of joint. Unhurt in three quarters, he suffered injury where danger seemed almost impossible.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE

Key Knauer, who pitched and played first base for the West Brooklyn team this past summer, entertained a few members of the "hot stove league" at his home near West Brooklyn Saturday night. The evening's menu included two delectable offerings—chicken and baseball talk and there was plenty of both. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the Knauer home were Walter C. Knack, H. Emmert, Bert Cummings, George Lebre, Shires Miller and Don Danielson.

ATTEND THE BIG SHOW

E. L. Fulmer and son, Dwight, and Bud and Bus Egler witnessed the pro gridiron game in Chicago yesterday afternoon when the Bears defeated the Cardinals, 44 to 7. Young Fulmer and his cousin, Bus Egler, are members of Coach Marvin Winger's lightweight team.

POTTER ON PROGRAM

Nelson Potter, pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, has accepted an invitation to tell of his experiences this season at this week's meeting of the Mt. Morris Kiwanis club. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock by the V. F. W. Auxiliary in its hall over the Royal Blue store. The many local baseball fans who would like to hear Potter are invited to attend this meeting. The club has extended an invitation to the Business Men's league to hold a joint meeting and all interested townpeople are welcome. Dinner reservations may be made by calling Bob Martin before noon Wednesday.

WATCHED WITH DISMAY

Many Dixon fans watched the defeat of the Iowa Hawkeyes with dismay Saturday, as they saw a team which includes a Dixon player swamped by Michigan, 37 to 7. Gerald Ankeny, former local athlete was substituted for Gumpier in the Iowa backfield. One tragedy for the Iowa came in the third quarter when Harmon sized up a play quickly and sent Ankeny to a pass. Taking the ball on his own 10-yard line Harmon raced 80 yards for a Michigan score.

MILLER AT WISCONSIN

Don Miller, another favorite son of Dixon, gave the Wisconsin supporters their first chance to cheer Saturday in the game with Indiana when he returned a punt 19 yards to the Hoosiers' 39 in the second quarter. Paskwan made two yards through left tackle and Miller added four at center. Paskwan made it a first down and Don picked up two yards and Paskwan crashed through center for a touchdown. The head linesman sounded his horn, however, and canceled the gain and the Badgers were set back five yards for offside. In the third quarter Tennant connected with a pass to Miller on Indiana's 19. Tennant ran around right end and cut back for six yards. Paskwan gained only four yards in line plunges and the Hoosiers took over the ball. Miller played substitute for Schmitt at right halfback.

STEWART BASEBALL BANQUET

J. M. Thompson, principal of the Steward high school, said this morning that about 100 men are expected for the annual baseball banquet tomorrow night. Serving will start about 6:30 o'clock. An informal program has been planned and Nelson Potter is expected to be one of the speakers. The school officials have had difficulty in obtaining a principal speaker and Rob Elson, who was invited, is unable to come.

VISITING ARCHERS ARE ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL GROUP

Dixon Club May Close Membership Drive Soon

A large gathering of archers and enthusiastic onlookers assembled at the Thompson range early yesterday afternoon for the third outdoor shoot of the season. The Dixon club entertained a group of out-of-town Robin Hoods including Mr. and Mrs. Allen and daughter Beverly of the Palmer Park Archery club of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Wells, Mr. Archer and Mr. Miller of Oregon. Mr. Tessman, Miss Arvella Smith, Miss Olds and Miss Layton were some of the new enthusiasts from this vicinity present.

The regular members of the club who participated in the day's events were Ken Abbott, Betty Nichols, Barbara Campbell, Albert Petit, Gene Goddard, Helen Krug, Jeanne Thompson, Bill Thompson, Maxine McGinnis, Courtney Chucker, Melvin Cory and Bill Krug.

To Meet Wednesday
The next meeting of the club will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 at The Telegraph offices. Everyone is urged to attend and the meeting will be primarily for the purchase of equipment.

All persons interested in obtaining membership in the Dixon club are asked to get in contact with Bill Thompson at telephone 1315 as soon as possible. Thompson, vice president of the organization, stated that the membership drive may be closed in the near future, and membership may be limited to under 50 members.

Thompson, in speaking of the newly organized group, today said, "The age-old sport of archery has and still is gaining in popularity all over this and many other countries of the world. This sport is gaining more interest and enthusiasm than some of the major sports of the day. Clubs are springing up in every county of every state in the Union. Dixon is fortunate in getting in on the ground floor, so let's get behind this organization and push ahead to make it one of the finest clubs in this part of the state. Even if your birthday doesn't fall between Nov. 23 to Dec. 22 and you are not included under the sign of Sagittarius, the Archer, you are still eligible to join the ranks of the Dixon Robin Hoods."

For the first time in the 11 years of Coach C. B. Lindell's excellent career as mentor of the Dixon high school football teams, the Belvidere gridirers were able to smash through the Purple ranks for a victory here Saturday afternoon when they scored three times in the second quarter to win, 19 to 6.

It was the second North Central conference defeat for the locals, but not a loss of which the lighter and less experienced Dixon squad need be too ashamed. Belvidere, with ten returning lettermen this year and among them a Stan Reimann who has just about everything a prep school halfback should have, was abruptly set back on its heels in a stunning 73-yard drive by the Lindellmen in the second half.

However, the hosts were slow to gain their pace and during a confused and listless first half they were completely outplayed by the hard-driving and slippery Boone county warriors. Dixon's second half eleven consisted of practically the same boys who played in the first, but for names and appearances the resemblance ended. Fair judgment must decree that they played poorly in the opening frames and brilliantly in the closing chapters. However, the halves of a gridiron battle do not represent two distinct games and in total time played the Belvidere boys won their laurels with a style from which no credit should be taken.

DIXON'S DRIVE

Dixon's drive from the Purple 27-yard line to the Belvidere goal early in the third period was the first brilliant display of gridiron tactics the local fans have witnessed this year and gave the only ray of hope in a somewhat dismal picture for 1939. The six straight first downs in a row made the Lindellmen seem like super-chargers and much of the line-cracking was due to the plunges of Howard Mantach who finally crossed the goal for Dixon's only score of the game and the second of the season. The whole Dixon backfield, including Moser, Weinman and Sanborn with Mantach, executed the push supported by a well-working line performing in a do-or-die spirit.

The work of Belvidere's Halfback Reimann was largely responsible for the opponents' triumph. He is one of the most outstanding runners seen in these parts in a long time with speed and deception which should take him far into the collegiate circles he is reported to have chosen.

Belvidere kicked to Dixon to start the game and the locals took the ball on their own 40. McNichols picked up two yards on the first play on a smash at the line. He was stopped for no gain on a spinner and a reverse from Sanborn to McNichols fell short of a first down by three yards and Johnson punted to the Belvidere 18.

Baker hit left tackle for 4 yards and Lear picked up three on a drive at the right side of the line. On a fake kick formation Fox carried the ball to the 29 for a first down.

Baker tried the line for one yard and Lear lost the gain on a right end play. Fox tried the left side of the line and added a yard before Schwarz kicked to Williams on the Dixon 14 where he was sneared.

Fake Punt Formation
In fake punt formation Dixon picked up a yard before Johnson booted out of bounds on the Dixon 34.

Fox took the ball for Belvidere to the 30, then failed on a fake reverse and Reimann, now in the game, went to the 27 on a right end run before Lear's pass was intercepted by McNichols on the Dixon 3 to put the locals in a tough spot. Johnson's kick was halted on Dixon's 30.

Fox lost a yard on an attempted end run and Reimann's 15-yard pass to Lincoln was good to the Dixon 14. On an off tackle play Fox picked up three yards and hitting the right side of the line he went to the Dixon 7. Fox made it a first down to the Dixon 4 as the quarter ended. Dixon 0, Belvidere 0.

Reimann ran to the 3-yard line on a right and play and Fox added a half yard before he hit the center of the line on the third down to score. Lear's attempted placement for the extra point went wide.

Following Kickoff

After the kickoff Dixon took possession on the Purple 29. A reverse from Sanborn to Mantach was good for six yards and Mantach made it first down through right tackle to the Dixon 41.

Sanborn, trying a spinner, was stopped for no gain. Walders hit the center of the wall for two yards and then tried the same play and went to the 44 from where Collins booted a beautiful punt to Reimann on the Belvidere 10 and he returned to the 47 before he was stopped.

Fox stopped at the line of scrimmage on the first play and a pass by Lear on a sleeper play was no good. Craig picked up four yards through right guard and Schwarz punted to the Dixon 21.

A reverse from Sanborn to Williams was fumbled and Dixon recovered to lose 7 yards. Collins kicked to Reimann on the Dixon 45 and he cleared a path to the 25. Lear's pass to Reimann failed when the sun blinded the receiver and Lear picked up two yards on a right end run before Craig passed 20 yards to his teammate who was downed on the Dixon 6.

Reimann Scores

Fox hit right tackle for 2 yards and Reimann scored on a plunge over the right side of the line. Lear's pass to Lincoln was no good for the extra point, Belvidere 12, Dixon 0.

Dixon's had kickoff went out of bounds on the Belvidere 38. On the first play Fox was sneared by Mantach for a five yard loss and Reimann picked up about 4 yards before Schwarz's high kick was taken by Weinman on his own 22 and he was stopped on the 36.

Sanborn's pass was knocked down and he lost a yard on a center smash. Collins kicked to Reimann on the Belvidere 30 and he raced to the Dixon 23, a run-back of 47 yards, before he was dropped. It was one of the best examples of open field running seen this season. Belvidere again in scoring position continued the drive when Lear made it a first down on a left end run to the Dixon 13.

Score on Pass

One pass by Craig and two by Lear into the end zone were no good. Dixon was penalized for offside and on fourth down Lear passed to Craig who stepped one yard into pay territory. Fox plunged through the line for the extra point, Belvidere 18, Dixon 0. Dixon had time for one incomplete pass after the kickoff before the half ended.

Starting the march of the second half Dixon kicked off to Belvidere and Lear returned from the 5 yard line to the 36. Fox picked up seven yards through left tackle and Reimann added two yards on the left side of the line. Sanford was hurt on the play when he received a severe gash in his forehead but he was bandaged and continued to play and figured in Dixon's drive.

Reimann fumbled on third down and lost about eight yards and Schwarz kicked to Mantach who was stopped in his tracks on the Dixon 27.

Stopped Cold

Weinman, on a double reverse, was stopped for no gain before Mantach picked up five yards through right guard and tackle and then drove through the right side again for a first down to the mid-stripe.

Moser hit left guard for six yards and Sanborn on a fake reverse made another first down to the 35. Weinman taking the ball from Sanborn on a reverse gained one yard before Mantach, on another reverse from Sanborn, rumbled around right end to the Belvidere 22 for another first down.

Sanborn's fake reverse failed to gain yardage and Mantach swept right end again to the Belvidere 11 for the fifth straight first down. Moser hit the center of the line and picked up two yards and Mantach smashed through right guard to the Belvidere 5. On the same play Mantach drove to the 4 and then hit left guard for a first down to the 21-yard marker.

The Belvidere line began to hold and Mantach went to the one-foot line before he was halted. On the next play Weinman was able to go only a few inches. On third down Mantach hit the center of the line which opened for the touchdown. In fake kick formation Mantach attempted a line buck for the extra point but failed.

The Hard Way

Dixon looked better in that drive than at any time in the season as the boys took the hard way—line drives—to work 73 yards to their objective.

Dixon kicked off to Belvidere following the scoring and Lear took the ball on his own 10 and romped to the 49 where he fumbled and Vaile of Dixon recovered.

Weinman's spinner added one yard and Moser tried the right side of the line and picked up another yard. Sanborn's pass over the line was knocked down and Collins, on a beautiful punt, booted the ball into the end zone. It escaped going out of bounds within the playing field only by inches.

From their own 20 the Belvidere charges failed to make first down on line drives by Reimann and Fox and a bad pass from center cost 5 yards. Schwarz booted to Moser on his own 20 and he scampered to midfield before he was halted. The quarter ended when Sanborn's pass was intercepted by Reimann on the 30 and he raced to the 45.

Fumble Recovered

Fox fumbled and recovered for no gain and then hit the center of the line for four yards. Reimann made it a first down to the Dixon 38 and on a left tackle smash Fox went to the 25. Belvidere lost six yards on the next play and Reimann's pass was intercepted by Sanborn on his own 35.

With Mantach, Sanborn and McNichols carrying the ball Dixon made two first downs in a row to the Belvidere 45. A Dixon fumble was recovered by Belvidere on the Dixon 47. The visitors failed to make first down and penalized five yards Schwarz was forced to punt and the ball went into the end zone.

From the Dixon 20 Mantach lost three yards on the first play and Sanborn tried a spinner for four yards. Collins kicked to the Dixon 42.

Reimann, Craig and Fox carried the ball for Belvidere and gained only seven yards before Schwarz again kicked to the Dixon 9.

On fake kick formation Mantach carried the ball to the Dixon 15 and McNichols picked up three yards on a spinner. Walders made it a first down to the Dixon 29. Mantach circled right end for five yards, Walders picked up two on a center smash and McNichols, on a spinner, made it first down to the 31. Dixon seemed headed for another drive but the game ended with Sanborn's incomplete pass.

Belvidere scored first in the second quarter when the Boone county reserves took possession on their own 15 and on a series of

WEEK END HELPS VERY LITTLE IN HUNT FOR CHAMP

Few Grid Surprises Are Noted in Collegiate Battles

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.

New York, Oct. 16—(AP)—Although some college football eleven are emerging slowly from the crowd, no single team nor a dozen, can be singled out as the best.

Saturday's results, close as some were, produced fewer surprises than on any previous week-end and this season and indications were that elimination of weaker contenders will continue this week in an even more orderly manner.

As things stand now, these teams have proved clearly their right to be ranked high in their respective sections (they're all undefeated, of course):

EAST—Pittsburgh; Midwest—Notre Dame, Michigan, Ohio State, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas State, South-Tulane, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina; Southwest—Texas A. and M., Baylor; Rocky Mountain Big Seven—Utah, Pacific Coast—Oregon, Southern California, St. Mary's.

The "Maybe" Group

Then there's a "maybe" group, including some teams struggling to recover from early setback and others which have not had a chance to prove their strength. These included Carnegie Tech, Duquesne, Cornell and Harvard in the east; Minnesota and Purdue, mid-west; Louisiana State, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Clemson and Virginia Military, south; Southern Methodist and New Mexico, southwest, and Denver and Oregon State, west.

Recently defeated by defeats or ties, but quite able to recover, were Dartmouth, Georgetown, Army, Brown, Villanova, Duke, Mississippi State, Iowa, Detroit, Texas and U. C. L. A.

Surviving prospects by sections, here's how things shape up for the coming week:

EAST—With a tapering off of the intercollegiate program, and no real title in sight, the traditional "Ivy League" games take the headlines. Most colorful of these is between Yale, beaten 6-0 by Penn, and Army, tied 6-6 by Columbia. Undeclared Cornell, 20-7 winner over Princeton, meets equally undeclared Penn State. Penn faces Harvard, which may have picked up both importance and confidence in a 61-0 rout of Chicago. Columbia plays Princeton.

Panthor Triumph

Pitt's winged Panthers, after passing to a 14-13 triumph over Duke, don't get much rest when they meet unbeaten Duquesne, Carnegie, 21-0 winner over Case, tackles New York university, which finally went down before North Carolina, 14-7. Other good pairings are Holy Cross-Brown, Temple-Boston college and in the intercollegiate line, Auburn-Manhattan and Washington and Lee-West Virginia.

SOUTH—Despite a setback in its bid for national honors, Duke remains one of the better teams and shouldn't be troubled too much by Syracuse, which tied undefeated Georgetown, 13-13 last week, Tulane, which looked about as good as any Southeastern Conference team in its 7-0 victory over Fordham, faces North Carolina, Southern Conference leader, Alabama and Tennessee, after winning "Breathers", clash in the most important Southeastern Conference game. Kentucky faces Georgia, 13-0 victim of Holy Cross, and Vanderbilt meets Georgia Tech. The Commodores lost 20-13 to Virginia Military in one of last week's surprises. The only Southern Conference game listed is Thursday's meeting between Clemson and South Carolina.

MIDWEST—On the basis of Michigan's 27-7 victory over Iowa and Ohio State's 13-0 conquest of Northwestern, these teams look like the best in the Big Ten. There's no telling how they may look next week after Ohio State plays Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Gophers were surprised a second time with a 13-13 tie by Purdue and should be out to make trouble. Michigan faces the weak Chicago team, Indiana, 14-0 winner over Wisconsin, plays Illinois, which took a 26-0 drubbing from Southern California on the west coast. Wisconsin and Northwestern clash, and Purdue plays Michigan State.

Navy vs. Notre Dame
Notre Dame, after squeaking through three games with a seven-point total margin, meets Navy at Cleveland in the outstanding intercollegiate game. The Irish had enough offense to beat Southern Methodist, 20-17, while Navy played a scoreless tie with Dartmouth Saturday. Nebraska, leading-light of the Big Six after a 10-7 conquest of Iowa State, faces Baylor, dark horse of the Southwest Conference, which defeated Arkansas, 18-7.

Oklahoma, which followed its Northwestern triumph by defeating Texas for the first time, 24-12, enters the Big Six title race against Kansas, 7-0 conqueror of Colorado State, Kansas State, which trimmed Colorado, 20-0, and Missouri meet in another Big Six game.

SOUTHWEST—Firmly established as a contender for national honors as a result of a 33-7 triumph over Villanova, Texas A. and M. comes home to the Southwest Conference, meeting last year's champion Texas Christian, whose third straight loss was a 12-11 decision to Temple. Arkansas and Texas come together, and Southern Methodist tackles Marquette, which finally climbed on the winning side with a lucky break which brought a 17-14 victory over Michigan State. Rice, after a 7-0 loss to Louisiana State, meets Sam Houston Teachers.

New Mexico, going great guns against local competition, taken on Texas Tech in another important tilt.

Oregon-Idaho
FAR WEST—Oregon, after strengthening its hold on the Pacific Coast by beating California, 6-0, takes time out to meet Gonzaga, 19-0 conqueror of Idaho. California meets Washington State, 6-0 winner over Washington, U. C. L. A. held to an unexpected 14-14 tie by Stanford, plays Montana State. Washington encounters Oregon State. The St. Mary's-Loyola game, scheduled Sunday, was cancelled because of infantile paralysis among Loyola players. The Gaels play Santa Clara Sunday.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN

Utah, safer than ever in the Big Seven lead after trouncing Brigham Young, 35-13, goes outside the conference to face Idaho. Denver, the Utes' leading rival on the basis of Friday's 32-7 win over Wyoming, tackles Utah State, and the Colorado and Colorado State teams come together.

Illinois Intercollegiate Conference to Get Down to Business This Week

Chicago, Oct. 16—(AP)—After several weeks of desultory firing, teams in the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference got down to business this week to the business of clarifying their battle for the football title.

Three league games were on tap which will leave Eureka as the only team without conference competition at the week's end. Normal plays Eastern Teachers at Charleston. Elmhurst goes to Carthage for a game and Western Teachers invade Carbondale

FORRESTON

MRS. FRED DEUTH,

Bolton-Salzgeber
The marriage of the Rev. Tressler S. Bolton and Miss Elizabeth
N. Salzgeber was solemnized
Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock
North Austin Lutheran church,
Chicago, the pastor, F. W. Otterbein, reading the service during soft strains of organ music.

Previous to the ceremony the church organist gave a short program of musical music, and Robert Salzgeber, brother of the bride, of Chicago, sang "To Thee, O Father" by Bruno Huhn.

During the playing of the wedding march, Miss Salzgeber entered the church with her father, August Salzgeber, who gave her in marriage. They were preceded by the matron of honor, Mrs.
Paul Kellner, sister of the bride, and the bride's matron, Mrs. Milton Flechsig of Chicago, meeting the Rev. Bolton, Milton Flechsig who was best man, and Arthur Bach of Chicago, brother-in-law of the Rev. Bolton, at the altar.

The Rev. Otterbein used Psalm 127:1 as his text, "Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it." He noted that Mrs. Bolton is the third young woman of his congregation to grace a paragon as a bride. The single ring ceremony was used.

The groom, the son of Mrs.
Minnie Bolton, is a graduate of Carthage college and the Lutheran seminary at Maywood, and came to Forreston June 1, 1937, immediately after graduation, to serve as pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Salzgeber of 1847 N. Drake avenue, Chicago.
She wore the dress which was worn by her sister, Mrs. Kellner, at her wedding, it being fashioned of egg-shell satin with train and long sleeves, puffed at the elbow, and a long tulle veil held in place
by a coronet of white blossoms, and she carried a white Bible.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Kellner, wore rose velvet and carried a colonial bouquet of pink. The brides' matron, Mrs. Flechsig, wore green velvet and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow blooms.
Both wore velvet hats to match their gowns. The bride's mother wore blue crepe and the groom's mother wore wine colored velvet, both having shoulder bouquets of mixed flowers.

After the wedding, a reception was held in the Salzgeber home on Drake avenue, the home being decorated in white bells and festoons. In the evening, a dinner and another reception in honor of the bride and groom was held in the home of the bride's aunt.

The Rev. and Mrs. Bolton have gone east on a two weeks trip into Indiana, Ohio, and will visit in the home of the Rev. R.
C. Richter, a seminary classmate, at Elderton, Pa., then on to Johnstown, Pa., across the Appalachian mountains, to Gettysburg, Pa., home of Gettysburg college, and then to Annapolis, and also the great battlefield and national cemetery. They will also visit the Lutheran Deaconess nursing-house and training school in Baltimore, Md., and the U. S.
Naval Academy at Annapolis, and the national capital in Washington, D. C.

Upon their return to Forreston a large reception is planned in their honor. Rev. Bolton expects to be back in his pulpit Oct. 29.
The following from Forreston attended the wedding: M. H. Eakle, Mrs. John Deuth, Mrs. J. C.
Akins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beebe,
Mrs. Robert Huntley and daughter, Gretchen, Mrs. Eugene Ainsworth, Mrs. Bertha DeGraff, Dr. and Mrs. B. G. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Deuth, Mr. and Mrs.
Gerald Powers of Mt. Morris, Lee
Timmer and Mr. and Mrs. G. L.
Kebler of Chicago were also present.

bloc in the Balkans, and expansion of Russia and Bulgaria by taking territory from Rumania.

Turkey also was said to have announced that she would join the Anglo-French allies if Italy should side with Germany.

The point of this is that Turkey's whole inclination is to play with England and France. She is afraid of the spread of Soviet influence in the Balkans, afraid of Germany and perhaps more afraid of what she regards as Italian ambitions for territorial expansion in Asia Minor.

Meanwhile Russia was reported to be massing troops on the borders of Turkey and Persia (a report which the Soviet has denied), and the situation was delicate.

What demands Russia has made on little Finland remain a secret, but Finland was said to fear demands which will trespass on her sovereignty. The Finns are resisting any claims which would tend to make her a virtual Soviet protectorate as in the cases of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania.

The sinking of the great British battleship Royal Oak by a German submarine, with the drowning of close to 800 men, and the destruction of three merchant ships, was followed this morning by another sensational report.

The German supreme command announced that the same submarine which sunk the Royal Oak had registered a torpedo hit on British battleship Repulse, putting her out of action. The Repulse is a bigger ship than the Great Royal Oak.

While the sinking of the ancient Royal Oak in itself doesn't seriously threaten the British blockade, the fact that the Germans have torpedoes powerful enough to sink a battleship must cause concern to the British Admiralty.
That would appear to represent a new development in naval warfare.

The sinking of further merchant shipping, coupled with the expectation of German air-raids on ships in English ports, is a matter of equal concern.

Britain herself is dependent on imports for 75 per cent of her foodstuffs. Should these supplies be cut off, as the Germans are trying to do, she would be in a desperate way.

MRS. HIRAM NELSON
Mrs. Hiram Nelson of Sandwich, passed away on Sunday afternoon at her home there. Mrs. Nelson was well known here and her many friends in this community were saddened by the news of her death. Mrs. Nelson, known here to all her friends as Allie Towne, spent the greater part of life in Paw Paw. Left motherless at the age of two she was cared for in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Eliza Towne Briggs. Upon the completion of school she engaged in teaching and continued in this vocation until her marriage to Hiram Nelson. Three sons were born to them, Robert, James and Curtis. She was a member of the Methodist church here and was a very active worker in all activities. The family moved to Sandwich in 1918, where they have since resided. There she affiliated with the Federated church and assumed many duties which she faithfully discharged. Her pastor, Dr. Converse, paid a beautiful tribute to her at the funeral service. She was also an active member of several other organizations, but with all these her home came first, as was evidenced by the love and devotion bestowed upon her by her husband and sons.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Federated church and she was laid to rest in the Oak Ridge cemetery. Among the friends from here who attended the services were: Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Wright, Mrs. Runyan, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Beale, H. R. Towne, Mrs. A. D. Martin and Mrs. Lillia Hammond.

JUNIOR WOMEN'S DANCE

The Junior Women's club dance held at the Paw Paw high school gym was a huge success. The affair was given on Friday evening. A very large crowd was in attendance and a fine time was enjoyed by those present.

EXPERIMENT MAY REVOLUTIONIZE
CORN PLANTINGPromises to Cut Costs and Increase Yield, Says
Promoter

El Paso, Ill., Oct. 16.—(AP)—An experiment which might revolutionize planting of the nation's corn fields because of its promise of bigger yields and slashed costs of production neared the end of its first trial year today.

It was conducted on an 80-acre test field with no special preparation or extra fertilization. The plot was worked entirely by machinery.

The corn was drilled in rows 20 inches apart, half the usual distance. The hills in each row were only 18 inches apart, with a single kernel of corn planted four inches deep in each hill, instead of two or three kernels.

This destroyed the customary geometrical pattern of a corn field wherein the hills were 40 inches apart in each direction.

Lester Pfister, a pioneer in commercial production of hybrid corn and director of the experiment, said that more kernels were planted per acre and each stalk was given more room in which to produce perfect ears.

Ground Worked Twice
The ground was plowed a year ago and worked twice, before planting, with a heavy 24-foot rotary hoe. After planting, the field was dragged four times by a 27-foot cultivator known as a finger-weeder.

A single acre harvested last week, Pfister said, yielded 98 bushels. It was harvested by a combine which husked, shelled and sacked the grain in a single operation.

"Personally, I think the yield should run between 125 and 145 bushels per acre, although that is still only a guess," Pfister said.

He added that "with such an ideal season as we have had, the same field under the old methods without hybrid seed might yield 100 bushels per acre, so I am expecting considerably more than that."

Careful cost records have been kept by Pfister and cooperating machinery companies. He said the cost of preparing the seed-bed, exclusive of seed, was $2.77 an acre, including labor, all out-of-pocket machine costs, use of land, taxes and depreciation. He said the corresponding cost under the old method was $4.31 an acre.

Mrs. M. L. Rayne, a writer of note, has left with us a description of the Bayard Taylor visit, which I am taking from the columns of the Dixon Telegraph of the period. Mrs. Rayne frequently visited in Dixon and it was on one of these visits she met "Governor" Charters. While this visit was a never-to-be-forgotten pleasure, she made a later visit to Dixon which was inexpressibly sad. It was at the time of the bridge disaster. Her daughter, Bessie Rayne, was with her. Bessie was anxious to witness the public baptismal ceremony on that Sunday, at the north end of the bridge. While standing on the bridge, it collapsed and she and her young companions were hurled into the river and drowned.

Following is Mrs. Rayne's story:

AN AMERICAN COUNTRY HOME

Near the old town of Dixon, Ill., situated on a picturesque declivity on the banks of Rock River, stands one of those mansions immortalized in song by poets, and so rich in historical associations that every foot of ground has a legendary value. Like all historic treasures, it belongs to the past, and the visitor under its hospitable roof is entertained today with a recital of events that transpired there a lifetime or more ago, when its owner, "a fine old Irish gentleman," drew about him the talent and flower of chivalry, and taught them the beauty of nature and the charm of congenial associations.

In that mansion used to be Free-hearted hospitality. His grate fires up the chimney roared.

The stranger feasted at his board. The name of the man who owned an estate so near perfection and who, despite virulent attacks of the gout, enjoyed every moment of his long life, was Alexander Charters. In his youth he had been a successful merchant, but after he became possessor of Hazelwood, he gave himself up to the pleasurable life of the dilettante.

I remember on the last occasion I saw him when I intended to offer my sympathy for a serious lameness which compelled him to go on crutches. "He will not see you," friends had said. "He is too proud to enter the parlor on crutches."

Nor did he. Walking as erect as he ever did in his life, he came in without a hint of lameness, although he must have suffered excruciating pain, and taking my ford, an occupant of the other machine was killed instantly.

On Tuesday evening at the Baptist church will be given an exceptionally entertaining event starting the Cotton Blossom Singers of the Piney Woods School in Mississippi. The program will feature singing, dialect readings, and a brief talk on life at the school. This group of young Negro men are certain to put on a fine program so be sure to attend. The program starts at 7:30 P. M. on Tuesday evening.

The government cribs are nearing completion and those already completed are being filled with grain.

Mrs. F. E. Nangle, president of the Lee County Federated Women's club, announced that C. Wayland Brooks will be the speaker, at the annual fall meeting of the Federation held at Franklin Grove on Friday, Oct. 27.

Mrs. M. L. Rayne, a writer of note, has left with us a description of the Bayard Taylor visit, which I am taking from the columns of the Dixon Telegraph of the period. Mrs. Rayne frequently visited in Dixon and it was on one of these visits she met "Governor" Charters. While this visit was a never-to-be-forgotten pleasure, she made a later visit to Dixon which was inexpressibly sad. It was at the time of the bridge disaster. Her daughter, Bessie Rayne, was with her. Bessie was anxious to witness the public baptismal ceremony on that Sunday, at the north end of the bridge. While standing on the bridge, it collapsed and she and her young companions were hurled into the river and drowned.

Following is Mrs. Rayne's story:

AN AMERICAN COUNTRY HOME

Near the old town of Dixon, Ill., situated on a picturesque declivity on the banks of Rock River, stands one of those mansions immortalized in song by poets, and so rich in historical associations that every foot of ground has a legendary value. Like all historic treasures, it belongs to the past, and the visitor under its hospitable roof is entertained today with a recital of events that transpired there a lifetime or more ago, when its owner, "a fine old Irish gentleman," drew about him the talent and flower of chivalry, and taught them the beauty of nature and the charm of congenial associations.

In that mansion used to be Free-hearted hospitality. His grate fires up the chimney roared.

The stranger feasted at his board. The name of the man who owned an estate so near perfection and who, despite virulent attacks of the gout, enjoyed every moment of his long life, was Alexander Charters. In his youth he had been a successful merchant, but after he became possessor of Hazelwood, he gave himself up to the pleasurable life of the dilettante.

I remember on the last occasion I saw him when I intended to offer my sympathy for a serious lameness which compelled him to go on crutches. "He will not see you," friends had said. "He is too proud to enter the parlor on crutches."

Nor did he. Walking as erect as he ever did in his life, he came in without a hint of lameness, although he must have suffered excruciating pain, and taking my ford, an occupant of the other machine was killed instantly.

On Tuesday evening at the Baptist church will be given an exceptionally entertaining event starting the Cotton Blossom Singers of the Piney Woods School in Mississippi. The program will feature singing, dialect readings, and a brief talk on life at the school. This group of young Negro men are certain to put on a fine program so be sure to attend. The program starts at 7:30 P. M. on Tuesday evening.

The government cribs are nearing completion and those already completed are being filled with grain.

wood charmed him and Charters captivated her. The Senator could not record his admiration for Hazelwood and its master as William Cullen Bryant and Margaret Fuller had done in poetry, but he could and did sound the praises of both in manner more impressive, if anything.

On his first visit there, he deferred an inquiry into the title, "Governor," for an interview with Colonel Dement privately, only to learn that it did not carry the reward for being a good vote getter. What then? If important, it should become attached to the Douglas political fortunes.

It was in a spirit of mutual levity that Colonel Dement explained that the title had no political significance whatever; that the title attached itself to the owner of Hazelwood as master, as was the custom back in the old country. Douglas accepted the explanation with a relish and ever after he lavished his heartiest praise and love on Hazelwood and "Governor" Charters. It was the one refuge for him from political strife, open and anxious to receive him and remove every last care that may have been imposed upon the Senator in those distressing times. Here were found stalwart friendship, kindness, sympathy, gentleness; a sedative for the frightful irritations that came to Senator Douglas especially in the last part of the 1850's.

In 1837 the family of Samuel M. Charters, the brother of Alexander, was composed of himself, his wife, Jane Greiger Charters, and their only child, Fannie J. Charters, who was born in 1830. While Samuel may not have intended to make Hazelwood his home permanently, he nevertheless spent considerable time there between 1837 and 1848, making frequent visits in New York to see his family. This fact is established by statements made by members of the family and more particularly by an entry made by Hubbard in his diary on September 25, 1844: "Going up to see Sam Charters who has just returned."

His wife must have passed away in 1848, because in that year Sam and his daughter, Fannie, removed to Hazelwood to live permanently. A record of the event is found in these words:

The Governor was assisted in his hospitable duties by his brother, Samuel M. Charters, and his niece, Fanny Charters, daughter of Samuel. She was eighteen years of age when she came with her father to reside at Hazelwood, and being a most beautiful girl and of fine education, she added immensely to the attractions of Hazelwood. Her admirers consisted of all the marriageable young men from many counties around Dixon and she shed a lustre upon the society of that early day which is even felt to the present time.

But it was left for James Boomer Charters, her cousin, to distance all competitors. On November 17, 1853, they were married by the Reverend John Edward Britt, at Hazelwood. But this happy event, the father, Samuel M. Charters, was not permitted to tarry at Hazelwood for long. On Monday, August 28, 1854, he passed away at Hazelwood at the age of fifty-two years. He was buried on Mount Kennedy, on the Hazelwood estate.

While it is true that Alexander Charters was ably assisted in the entertainment of friends after the arrival of Samuel and his daughter, it must not be assumed that entertainment had lagged at any time subsequent to his own arrival. We have but to refer to the newly Hubbard diary for confirmation of social items from almost the beginning of things. And of Mr. Hubbard's active and frequent participation, ample evidence is disclosed:

HAZELWOOD
Its Master and Its Coterie

March 4, 1843. Went to Charters' this evening with W. Randolph and the boys.

To include the boys might have been a tactful expression for the line of entertainment that followed whenever a party of "the boys" gathered around the Charters board.

March 5, 1843. Cold. Returned from Charters.

While Charters seldom left Hazelwood to accept hospitalities from his neighbors, it seems that with Hubbard at least he not only accepted them but when it came to a house-raising by Hubbard, the "Governor" actually assisted in that useful and important function.

April 13, 1843. Pleasant. Raised house, assisted by William and James Kennedy, Charters, Bill G. Sparks, John & Richard Becker, Tom Randolph, Dick Bayley and Martin Richardson. Commenced at 10 o'clock and finished at sunset. Quick work one might say!

In another entry made on December 25, 1844, was recorded another visit of Charters, this time to the home of his friend, John T. Lawrence. This is the Hubbard version.

Christmas mild, smoky lowering clouds, strong S. E. wind. Dined with Mr. Lawrence. Charters, Du Voisin there—high festival. Remained all day.

I know of no entry, in all the long list of diary entries, more expressive of the old-time entertainment than the above. And just who Du Voisin was has not yet been learned. He was probably just one of the many who dropped in from any place between the Atlantic seaboard and the Mississippi River.

June 14, 1843. Warm, pleasant. Threshing oats in the forenoon. Went to see Charters in the afternoon.

July 23, 1843. Went to Dixon and Grand Detour with Randolph. Stopped at Charters' all night. Could not see Dana about lumber.

July 24, 1843. Returned from Charters to Capt. Graham. Charters gave me an order on Dana for lumber—1,000 feet. I am fearful that I shall not procure the kind I want, as his mill is stopped for want of water.

July 27, 1843. Started for Grand Detour with Codlin and Short, but learning from Alexander Charters, his quarrel with Cummins, House & Co., returned home.
